THE STORY OF A LIFE.

Say, what is life? 'Tis to be born
'A helpless babe, to greet the light
With a sharp wail, as if the morn
Foretells cloudy noon and night,
To weep, to sleep, and weep again,
With sunny smiles between—and then?

And then apace the infant grows
To be a laughing, sprightly boy,
Happy despite his little woes,
Were he but conscious of his joy!
To be, in short, from two to ten,
A merry, moody child—and then?

And then, in coat and trousers clad, To learn to say the decalogue, And break it, and unthinking lad, With mirth and mischief all agog;

A truant oft by field and fen, And capture butterflies—and then? And then increased in strength and size, To be anon a youth full grown; A hero in his mother's eyes, A young Apollo in his own: To iaritate the ways of men In fashionable sin—and then?

And then at last to be a man, To fall in love, to woo and wed! With seething brain to scheme and plan To gather gold or toil for bread; To sue for fame, with tongue and pen, And gain or lose the prize!—And then?

Beer Drinking. That beer in moderate quantities is wholesome beverage, has been urged more than once by others than British or German medical writers; while other professional and non-professional authorities have stoutly maintained the contrary. One of the most recent and notable of the latter class is Col. Green, president of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, who says: "In one of our largest cities, containing a great population of beerdrinkers, I had occasion to note the deaths among a large group of persons whose habits, in their own eyes and in those of their friends and physicians, were temperate; but they mortality in it was astonnding in extent, and still more remarkable in a fair outside, increasing weight, florid faces, then a touch of cold, or a snift of malaria; and instantly some acute disease, with almost invariably typhoid symptoms, was in violent action, and ten days or less ended it. It was as if the system had been kept fair outside while within it was eaten to a shell, and at the first touch of disease there was utter collapse; every fiber was poisoned and weakened. And this, in its main features, varying of course in degree, has been my observation in beer-drinking everywhere. It is peculiarly deceptive at first : it is thoroughly destructive at

This testimony is certainly emphatic enough; and the fact that it comes from a careful observer and a life insurance "expert" gives it additional weight. We trust that our English readers will duly ponder it.—Popular Science Monthly.
